Tee off for charity

MCLEOD Country Golf Club members teed off in the name of charity on July 14 to raise money for disadvantaged women entering the workforce.

Club president Di Paez said golfers turned out to support Dress for Success Brisbane which aimed to help women overcome obstacles and develop their full potential.

"We want to help disadvantaged women achieve the life they dreamed about," Ms Paez said.

"We believe a woman's life can be enriched in so many different ways - by her social interaction through a supportive network, through sporting pursuits and employment opportunities."

Ms Paez said money was raised through entry fees and raffles and golfers were also asked to donate pre-loved shoes and handbags for Dress for Success clients.

Dress for Success Brisbane has been assisting disadvantaged women entering the workforce since June 2008 and the charity is about to celebrate the outfitting of its 800th client.

Dress for Success vice-president Pamela Hartwell said McLeod Country Golf Club had supported the charity for three years.
